SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15 .- Advices from Tucson, Arizona Territory, of Oct. 8th, say that on the 13th of September a band of Apache Indians attacked Hughes' Ranche near Coitterdon and killed a Mexican and stole some animals belonging to the former. Lieut. Hall, of the 5th cavalry, went to the Ranche and found the savages one hundred strong, armed with breech-loading guns. They retired to the mountains and defied the troops. A sergeant and five men were dispached to warn the farmers of Santa Valley of the presence of hostile Indians near Hughe's ranche, but were attacked and Sergeant Steward, Corporal Nation and privates Edward Carr and John Walsh were killed. Lieut. Hall received orders from Gen. Howard not to fire on the Indians in the mountains unless he found them engaged in actual outrages. The same order was sent to all military posts south of Gila rivers. On the same day of the murder of the soldiers, Gen. Howard was at this time in Dragoon Mountains with the noted Apache chief, Cochise, trying to induce him to go to the Reservation.

On the 6th of October a band of Apaches from the South Pillar Mountains, with a herd of stolen cattle, attacked a party of miners thirty miles from Tucson and robbed them of all their animals. Two of the miners are missing. The Indians are armed with the best kind of breech loading guns and fixed amunition.

Some colored people had a dance last night at a house on Gay street, below Main, which came near ending the life of one of the parties, and did cause the confinement of two of the women in the calaboose. A colored man there, with pistol in his pocket, was rather careless and the weapon was discharged, the ball entering his leg above the knee and passing out through the calf. He, however, made his escape from the police. The two women got into a row shortly after the shooting, when they were taken care of by the city guardians.
